We are very pleased to announce our NEW Webinar Series: Activating Financial Systems Change at The Finance Innovation Lab. This Webinar series will stimulate discussion and action by examining the hot topics in transformational change in financial systems. They will be lead by our distinguished group of Lab Faculty and participants.

Roland Kupers, on sabbatical from Royal Dutch Shell as visiting fellow at the Oxford Institute for Science, Innovation and Society (InSIS), will present The Oxford Scenarios: Beyond the Financial Crisis a new set scenarios which to look beyond the current financial crisis to a deeper reflection about risk, uncertainty and the way we manage our world. By developing two possible stories of how the world can move past the credit crunch and forward into the future, these scenarios aim to spur new ways of thinking and a new approach to the actions that are taken in the present. If you have the opportunity before the webinar, please click on the link to download and read the scenarios: <http://www.sbs.oxford.edu/financial-scenarios>

What is The Finance Innovation Lab?

The Lab is an opportunity to have a formative role in shaping the financial system so that it better serves the needs of people and planet.

We are convening a group of policy makers, investors, scientists, innovators and civil society groups to form an incubator for new ideas around the financial system.

Lab Faculty – Champions of the project now include:

- Sir Mark Moody Stuart (Ex-Chairman, Anglo American)
- Deborah Meaden (Dragon's Den)
- Hazel Henderson (Global futurist)
- Stewart Wallis (Exec Director New Economics Foundation)

- Pavan Sukhdev (MD Deutsche Bank India and UNEP Study Leader The Economics of Ecosystems and Biodiversity project)
- Gayor Coley (Managing Director, Eden Project)
- James Quiligan (Economic consultant for government agencies in over 26 countries)
- Lawrence Bloom (WEF and UNEP Green Economy Initiative)
- Terry Patten (Integral coach, teacher, trainer, consultant, and writer)
- Paul Druckman – (Chairman Trucost)
- Jonathon Porritt (Founder Director of Forum for the Future)
- Tim Jackson – (Professor University of Surrey)
